

ABSTRACT

According to one embodiment, a platform is disclosed. The platform includes one or more service modules to generate marketing content for directory listings, an application programming interface (API) communicatively coupled to interface with the one or more service modules, and a database to store data associated with the marketing content.